

A Two-Mouth Woman Makes the Boy Smile, Deanna Volz

This is part of a series that follows a young boy and a woman through Japan. In this drawing they encounter a Two-Mouth woman at a ramen shop. The mouth at the back of her head sticks out its tongue to make the boy laugh.

Returning a Fox Home, Deanna Völz

In this drawing a fox has transformed into a tiny fox statue and the little boy is putting the statue back with its family.

Conference at a Youkai Café, Deanna Volz

In this drawing the woman is chatting with the Youkai at a café about where to head next while the little boy takes a nap. The youkai seen in this picture are the Stretchy-Neck Woman, Daitengu, Crow Tengu, and behind the closet door, Hand-eye.
